Preface

This list of medical bibliographies from Slavic countries was compiled by Mr. Stanley Jablonski of the Index Division, Armed Forces Medical Library, and is published with the editorial supervision of the Reference Division of the Library. It thus becomes another in the series of long bibliographies published by the Armed Forces Medical Library since 1950. (Other titles include: Bibliography of Military Psychiatry, 1947-1952; Plasma substitutes Except those Derived from Human Blood, 1940-1951; and Gas Gangrene and Gas Gangrene Organisms, 1940-1952). This series of bibliographies is intended to make available to scientists all over the world some of the resources of one of the largest collections of medical literature in existence.

The bibliography covers works published during the post-war years, 1945-54, although a few 1955 items have been included. Unless otherwise noted every item has been examined by Mr. Jablonski at either the Armed Forces Medical Library or the Library of Congress. The entries under each subject heading are arranged chronologically. Annotations are provided only when the translated title does not furnish all the information desired. Cyrillic characters have been transliterated according to the Library of Congress scheme.

We are indebted to Mr. Jablonski for conceiving and carrying out the compilation of this list.
